Speaker Biography:

---

Terri Newman and Stephanie Cantwell are artist / teacher / researchers at Bacons College and Alexandra Park School in London. Their collaborative partnership began in 2013 when they were completing their initial teacher training. Terri Newman and Stephanie Cantwell are currently completing the MA Artist Teacher and Contemporary Practice program at Goldsmiths University where they explore arts education and critical pedagogy. Their practice research is interested in the potentiality of collaborative and dialogical art and design education in HE and FE institutions. Drawing upon their experience in education and collaborative project management they have developed a working method that brings together young practitioners to establish communities of learning and practice based research models of exploration.
