

blip blip blip – An Independent Curatorial Programme as Unofficial Module blip blip blip is a curatorial programme which is committed to examining and fostering relationships between art practice and art education. Whilst the programme's origins are at Leeds College of Art, it is now independent and based at Patrick Studios, East Street Arts, Leeds. This paper addresses how Foundation Fine Art students at Leeds College of Art have been able to supplement the official course curriculum by becoming active in the programme at blip blip blip. It further examines how the programme has encouraged students to be proactive in their engagement with the art world and to actively seek out and establish exhibition and curatorial opportunities on progressing to their respective BA Fine Art courses.
